Multicultural Education

Don't confuse multicultural education with ethnocentric curriculums. Multicultural educators attempt to provide balanced, historically accurate information on the cultural contributions and influence of the diverse population groups that make up American society. Americans All, A National Multicultural Education Program succeeds admirably in this regard. The program for K-12 students has modular units that can replace or complement textbook treatments. The program also includes reproducible archival photographs that can be used with the program or separately. Americans All, 6011 Blair Rd., N.W., Washington, DC 20011, (202) 832-0340.
